SCHOOL OF DIPLOMACY AND JURISPRUDENCE.

The School of Diplomacy and Jurisprudence of the American University was opened on February 9, 1920. The first complete scholastic year of the school was concluded on June 8, 1921.

In order to accommodate young men and women, employed in the Government service or in other work in Washington, who may desire to take advantage of the graduate work leading to the Master's or Doctor's degrees offered by the American University, the University has purchased five lots of land on F Street, between 19th and 20th Streets, Northwest, upon which the University will hold classes at the buildings at 1901 and 1907 F Street. The lectures of the School of Diplomacy and Jurisprudence are held largely between 4:50 and 9:15 P. M. for the convenience of students employed during the day.

The School of Diplomacy and Jurisprudence, like the other departments of the University, is on a strictly graduate basis. No person can be admitted as a regular student in this school who has not received a bachelor's degree from some approved university, college, or law school. A very limited number of persons who have had a portion of the work toward the bachelor's degree may be admitted as special students in the Department of Diplomacy.

OTHER GRADUATE COURSES.

Students desiring work in the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences should address the dean, Frank W. Collier, 1901 F Street, Washington. Those desiring work in the School of Business Administration should address the dean, Frederick Juchhoff, 1907 F Street, Washington.

DIVISION OF SCHOLASTIC YEAR.

Beginning with the Summer Quarter of 1920 the scholastic year of the American University has been divided into four terms, or quarters, of eleven weeks each. Any three of these Quarters will constitute a full year's work. A student attending all four of the terms will be able to receive credit for one and a third year's work in a calendar year.

The four Quarters at the American University during the scholastic year 1922-3 will begin and close on the following dates:

Summer Quarter, 1922, June 19 to September 2.

Fall Quarter, 1922, October 2 to December 20.

Winter Quarter, 1923, January 2 to March 17.

Spring Quarter, 1923, March 19 to June 2.

SUMMER QUARTER.

The Summer Quarter is an integral part of the scholastic year. The standard of instruction and the requirements for admission are the same as during the other Quarters of the year.

TUITION.

The tuition fee in the School of Diplomacy and Jurisprudence is forty dollars per term, payable in advance. Students taking less than ten hours of classroom work per week will be charged at a proportionate rate.

All students upon their first registration pay a Matriculation Fee of Five Dollars.

For further information address American University or call at 1907 F Street, between the hours of 4 and 6 P. M.

DEPARTMENT OF DIPLOMACY.

The courses of study offered in this Department are intended not only for those who expect to enter the diplomatic or consular service, but also for those expecting to engage in foreign trade, and for lawyers and law students who wish to specialize in the practice of International Law.

ADMISSION AND DEGREES.

Candidates for admission as regular students must have received the degree of A. B., Ph. B., or B. S., from some approved University or college, or have received the degree of LL. B., or J. D., from some approved law school.

A limited number of persons who have taken a portion of the work towards a degree in an approved University, College, or Law School, may be admitted as special students.

The regular course of study covers two years, but students who have already taken a sufficient number of the courses offered, in their College and Law School courses, may be able to complete the course in a somewhat shorter period. On the other hand students who can devote only a portion of their time to the work of the school will be expected to attend for a longer period before completing the course.

Candidates successfully completing the course will be given either the degree of Master of Arts (A. M.), in Diplomacy, or that of Master of Laws (LL. M.), in Diplomacy.

Students who enter without an Academic or Law degree, but who at the conclusion of their work in this Department, have satisfactory credits representing at least five years of study beyond a four years' high school course will be awarded the degree of Master of Diplomacy (Dp. M.).

To obtain credit for a full Term's work a candidate must take at least ten hours per week of classroom work (selected from the list of courses offered in this Department), and must attend the collateral lecture courses on foreign and diplomatic subjects offered in this department.

Students who are obliged to devote the greater part of their time and energies to other work will ordinarily not be able to take so much work in a term, and will therefore be obliged to attend a greater number of terms in order to complete the course and secure a degree. No students will be permitted to take more studies than the number in which he can maintain a high standard of scholarship.

Students who have received the degree of Master of Arts in Diplomacy may become candidates for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in Diplomacy, under the rules and regulations of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences. (See announcement of that school.) Candidates for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in Diplomacy, after they have received the degree of Master of Arts in Diplomacy, will be enrolled in the Graduate School of Diplomacy and Jurisprudence, and also in the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences.

MODERN LANGUAGES.

Classes in any Modern Language will be organized upon the request of a sufficient number of students.

Every candidate for a degree must have a thorough knowledge of either French or Spanish before graduation.

DEPARTMENT OF JURISPRUDENCE.

ADMISSION AND DEGREES.

The courses in the Department of Jurisprudence lead to the degrees of Doctor of Civil Law (D. C. L.), of Doctor of Jurisprudence (J. D.), and of Master of Arts (A. M.), and Doctor of Philosophy (Ph. D.), in Political Science.

THE D. C. L. DEGREE.

To be admitted as a candidate for the degree of Doctor of Civil Law the applicant must have received either the degree of Doctor of Jurisprudence (J. D.), or Master of Laws (L. L. M.), from an approved Law School, or have received both the degree of Bachelor of Laws (LL. B.), from an approved Law School, and the degree of Bachelor of Arts (A. B.), or an equivalent degree, from an approved University or College.

The time of study required for the degree of Doctor of Civil Law in the case of a student who is able to devote practically all of his time to his work in this school, is two years, except that students holding the degree of Doctor of Jurisprudence from the American University or the degree of Master of Laws in Diplomacy from the American University may receive the degree in one year.

THE J. D. DEGREE.

To be admitted as a candidate for the degree of Doctor of Jurisprudence the applicant must have received the Degree of Bachelor of Arts, or some equivalent degree, from an approved University or college and must have studied for at least three years in an approved law school.

The minimum time of study required for the degree of Doctor of Jurisprudence is one year.

METHODS OF INSTRUCTION.

The method of instruction in this school will be partly by lectures and partly by individual research work under the supervision of some member of the faculty.

To obtain credit for a full Term's work a candidate must take at least ten hours per week of classroom work (selected from the list of courses offered in this Department), or do an equivalent amount of individual research work, and in addition must attend the general lecture courses on legal topics given in this school. A student taking less than this amount of work in a Term will be given a proportionate credit toward his Degree. In general a candidate for the D. C. L. degree will be expected to secure about two-thirds of his credits from classroom work and about one-third from research work.

THE DEGREES OF A. M., AND Ph. D., IN POLITICAL SCIENCE.

Candidates for the degree of Master of Arts (A. M.), in Political Science must hold the degree of A. B., or an equivalent degree, from a recognized College or University, and must pursue a course of study extending over a minimum period of two years. Approximately three-fifths of the work taken for this degree must be in the field of Political Science. The candidate for this degree may be permitted to take for one of his Minors either Economics (in the Graduate School of Business Administration), or General History (in the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences).

Students who have received the degree of Master of Arts in Political Science may become candidates for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in Political Science, under the rules and regulations of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences. (See Announcement of that School). Candidates for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in Political Science, after they have received the degree of Master of Arts in Political Science, will be enrolled in the Graduate School of Diplomacy and Jurisprudence, and also in the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences.

COURSE OF STUDY.

(Note:—Courses marked (1) or (2) are given in alternate years. Those marked (1) will be given in the Academic Year of 1923-24 and alternate years thereafter; those marked (2) will be given 1922-23 and alternate years thereafter.
